CASE STUDY

FINANCIAL SERVICES

File Encryption

Financial Services Organization

The challenge

This financial services client with stringent compliance and security requirements needed to upgrade their security posture, specifically with respect to their file encryption. They were using an older, no longer supported solution. It was a dead-end.

navitend's role

This client's volume of files and diversity of users made the project a non-trivial exercise, requiring an exhaustive planning phase. We mapped out not only the technical solution and budget, but importantly we mapped out the life-cycle and the transition process. After planning and logistics, we executed on this critical upgrade and successfully moved the data, adjusted the backup and retention policies, and worked with each user to make sure they had access to the data they need.

The result

What started out as a security concern and a compliance headache due to end-of-life software is now a solid and secure solution for the foreseeable future. Downtime was minimal and the budget works, including an incorporated Business Continuity Plan and a solid footing for Disaster Recovery readiness.
